The great outdoors. Harrowing father-son glacier trek ends with a hug

JEREMY NOLAIS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Raymond Cossette had taken three steps across a snow bridge when it "disappeared" beneath his feet.

On Sunday, the 32-year-old Airdrie man was six kilometres up a glacier on Mount Robson, an hour northwest of Jasper, with his father, Robert. The elder Cossette had flown in from Gatineau, Que., for an annual father-son climbing trip.

But now Ray was free-falling down a crevasse, plunging at least 18 metres before the rope tethered to Rob began to tighten. When he hit a pack of deep snow roughly 25 metres below, Ray sank up to his neck. Only his left arm was free.

"I was actually relatively calm. I was just waiting for the rope to catch," said Ray, who has been scaling mountains and studying the finer points of climbing for nearly a decade. "If he (Rob) had given me two or three feet more slack, I would have been buried down there, essentially."

Up above, the force of Ray's fall had swept Rob off his feet. He had already crossed the snow bridge with no problems, but now was being dragged back toward the hole that had just opened up.

"It was like, 'This is not happening — this is a dream,'" he said, still emotional. "I just dug in for dear life and all I could see was the edge coming so fast. Then, all of a sudden, everything stopped and all I could see was black. My sunglasses had filled up with snow."

Rob admits he's a much less-experienced climber than his son, but they'd gone over safety precautions the night before, practising knots and discussing proper anchoring and positioning.

Rob managed to anchor himself and began securing knots to stabilize the rope. But he couldn't hear Raymond and feared the worst. "Nobody wants to lose their son ... nobody has a death wish," he said.

But Ray had managed to pull his shovel out of his pack and started digging himself out. Once free, he turned to his ice-climbing equipment, but the ice at that depth was too thick to dig into. Instead, Ray used a Prusik technique he'd practised by tying a rope to beams in his garage and shimmying up.

When Ray reached the top, two hours after his fall, his father wrapped him in a big hug.

"He was shaking," Rob said. "I thought, 'Oh no, hypothermia's setting in.'"

But Ray, ever the adventurer, considered pressing on. "That, of course, was the shock," he said. "The adrenalin's still pumping."

It wasn't until they were back at base camp and getting ready to sleep that Ray broke down.

"He told me, 'Dad, I'm frightened, I don't want to do this anymore,'" Rob recalled.

But the feeling didn't last long, and the pair teamed up for an "easy summit" on Thursday. On future glacier climbs, they plan to add a third person to the rope.

Ray was quick to credit his father for being a good student.

"He was far enough away to catch some of that fall and he knew that ... without him, things could have gone much worse."

Ray Cossette, right, credits his father, Rob Cossette, with saving his life after he plunged 25 metres into a crevasse, inset, on Sunday. COURTESY RAY COSSETTE

Airdrie.
Man facing child porn charges

The Alberta Internet Child Exploitation (ICE) unit has arrested and charged an Airdrie man it alleges convinced a nine-year-old girl to make sexually explicit videos for him.

ICE received an FBI tip in June, alerting the squad to a suspect they said was convincing a young American girl to create videos on her webcam.

On Aug. 1, investigators executed a search warrant on an Airdrie home and seized electronics and computers.

The suspect was not home at the time, but a warrant was issued for his arrest, and on Aug. 6, Robert James Tyndall, 42, was arrested at home without incident.

He is charged with one count each of accessing, possessing and making child pornography, sexual interference, sending sexually explicit material to a person under the age of 16 and two counts of luring.

Investigators allege Tyndall used various user names and email addresses including doughboysrevenge95@gmail.com, doughboyprince96@gmail.com, canadianprince95@gmail.com and canadianbaconprince@gmail.com.

"This is a happy day, not just because we arrested someone, but most importantly because we saved a nine-year-old girl from repeated sexual abuse," acting Staff Sgt. Dean Jacobs of ICE said in a statement on Thursday.

Tyndall appeared in court on Aug. 6 but has since been released on bail.

Anyone who may have information relating to this incident is asked to call the ICE unit at 403-428-4905. METRO

Litterbug quadruples cost of repairing a road

After the flood.
Car batteries dumped decades ago means 300-metre section of road to cost about $2 million to repair

ROBSON FLETCHER
robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Whoever dumped a bunch of car batteries near the Bow River decades ago has cost Calgary taxpayers an extra million dollars or so in flood-related street repairs, the city's director of roads said Thursday.

"It's taken us almost a month longer than it normally would to rebuild this road," Ryan Jestin said, while standing on a newly paved section of Heritage Drive S.E. beneath Glenmore Trail.

The delay in rebuilding the roughly 300-metre section of road washed away by a furious Bow River in late June came after crews discovered "about 10" old batteries while excavating the area, Jestin said.

The batteries had leaked their contents, he added, resulting in high lead and sulphur content in the soil that had to be remediated.

"It was going to be about a quarter-million dollars or half a million dollars to just repair it back to pre-flood conditions," Jestin said. "Now that we detected some environmental concerns, it's probably three or four times that — so closer to $2 million to do this relatively small section of the road."

That brings the total bill for flood-related road repairs across Calgary to about the $25-million mark, according to the latest city estimates.

Jestin said the damaged section of Heritage Drive S.E. should be reopened by Aug. 15.

Adding up

$25M

The total bill for flood-related road repairs across Calgary is now around the $25-million.

The damage

Rising costs

As Metro reported on July 30, city officials figure total flood damage to city assets is approaching $500 million.

Many individual cost calculations, however, are "Class 5" estimates, meaning the final figure could be anywhere from 50 per cent less to 100 per cent more.

The $25-million estimate for road repairs is more definitive, though. Jestin expects the actual cost to be "awful close" to that amount. METRO

Jarrid Rich delivered a speech to riders at the opening ceremonies of the 2012 Enbridge Ride to Conquer Cancer. He has since lost his battle with cancer but his family and friends will be riding in his honour.

COURTESY RIDE TO CONQUER CANCER

Jarrid's Team to carry on his legacy

Ride to Conquer Cancer. Event postponed due to June flooding

KATIE TURNER
katie.turner@metronews.ca

Only a few weeks after finishing chemotherapy, Jarrid Rich was on a bike taking part in a two-day ride aimed at ending the disease that was plaguing him.

This year, his friends and family will be carrying that torch in his honour.

During the opening ceremonies of the 2012 Ride to Conquer Cancer benefitting the Alberta Cancer Foundation, Rich spoke to his fellow riders and, despite his ongoing battle with a rare form of sarcoma lung cancer, was able to deliver words of inspiration before hitting the road on a bike he'd only picked up two days earlier.

"He led by example," said his mother Susanne. "Jarrid got on that bike and he rode."

In March, Rich, a father of two young children, lost his battle. He would have turned 29 on June 20 — two days before the ride was originally scheduled to start, before heavy flooding that day forced organizers to postpone the ride until this weekend.

Rich's godfather Frank Symons will be leading the team this year and, after riding with his godson in previous years, expects it will bittersweet.

"He was really committed to trying to find a cure and for a young fellow his age, it's pretty remarkable as far as I'm concerned," said Symons.

The group of riders, made up of mostly family members and friends, has raised nearly $29,000 in online pledges — nearly $10,000 more than their initial goal of $19,000. The money will be directed toward "orphan cancers" such as the one that took Rich's life.

Symons said he hopes to see Jarrid's Team continue on for years to come.

"I'm asking each one of the members to find someone else to join the team and eventually his kids will be part of the team," he said. "We're going to have his legacy carry on and we'll do that with the ride."

At this year's opening ceremonies, Susanne will be one of four pushing the riderless bike to the starting line — a symbolic gesture to honour those lost to cancer.

"We'll have his actual bike with his name on it," she said. "It's extremely powerful and it just brings it home ... even more as to why we need to keep doing this."

Quoted

"We're going to continue with his memory and legacy and his work to try and contribute to finding a cure for cancer."

Frank Symons, leader of Jarrid's Team

Delays

Spirit still strong

Two days before hundreds of cyclists were to converge with a shared goal of biking in the name of cancer fundraising, floodwaters ravaged much of the planned route for the Enbridge Ride to Conquer Cancer.

Daryl Silzer, associate vice-president of the Alberta Cancer Foundation, said the decision to call off the June 22 to 23 event was one that was essentially made for them, but he added they knew immediately it would be postponed, not cancelled.

"We still need to raise funds ... for those 43 people in Alberta that hear the words 'You have cancer' every single day," said Silzer.

In addition to fundraising, Silzer said people have been training for months, and many are riding in honour of someone that's battling or has lost their life to cancer.

Now, more than seven weeks after the flood, the ride will go on Aug. 10 and 11 along the initial route that was planned from Calgary, out west and then south to Okotoks.

Gorilla brothers leave Calgary Zoo for Dallas Zoo

Wanted bigger bananas? Shana and Zola landed on Thursday

Two of the Calgary Zoo's Western lowland gorillas have been sent south in hopes of finding them a more suitable social group.

Brothers Zola and Shana came to Calgary in 2009 from the Bronx Zoo and animal curator Malu Celli said they hoped the pair, who were seven at the time, would fit in.

"We thought the boys were young enough that the silverback would accept them because they were still quite little, but it was very clear that was not the case from the start."

Since then, the two have had to remain separated from the rest of the group, creating some challenges in terms of space, especially in the winter months, according to Celli.

"It put us in a difficult position, so we requested for the boys to go to a bigger group and that would mean more space for our current family group," she said.

Zola became well known when the zoo released a YouTube video of him breakdancing (really, splashing in some water) that went viral.

"It's always difficult to see them go, and not because Zola was a bit of a superstar. It's because keepers get attached to them," said Celli. "We do all this because we care for the animals and we want what's best for them."

The pair will join two other lone males who are close in age.

KATIE TURNER/METRO

The zoo's brood

- The brothers are likely not the last to leave the zoo, as Celli said it may soon be time for one of their females, Barika, who is nearly 13, to leave the group to breed.
- The Calgary Zoo currently has six gorillas; five females and one silverback named Kakinga who is Barika's father.
- Kakinga has produced nine offspring with four mates since he became the troop leader in 1993.
- The Calgary Zoo has had gorillas for more than 50 years.

Calgary's homicide count is outpacing that of other cities

Sixteen so far this year. City even with Montreal, Edmonton but doubles Ottawa

JEREMY NOLAIS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Calgary police have faced the same number of homicides this year as their colleagues in Edmonton and are outpacing Winnipeg and other Canadian cities of comparable size.

The stabbing death of 38-year-old John MacPherson brings the city's body count to 16 in 2013. That number is just two shy of the total count in 2012 and has already surpassed the 11 criminal deaths reported in 2011.

It's also on pace to surpass the five-year average but is still well back of the 35 recorded in 2008, right at the height of a war between rival gangs.

Still, Winnipeg and Edmonton law enforcement have faced a great deal more criticism over their homicide rates in recent years. Calgary's neighbours to the north garnered national media attention amid 48 murder investigations in 2011.

Calgary Police Insp. Cliff O'Brien said "there's a danger" in looking at a crime statistic in isolation, but added this year's count reinforces a need to continue working with community partners on crime prevention.

Doug King, a criminologist at Mount Royal University, said homicides tend to occur more often at certain points in the year, adding "it's not inconceivable" that Calgary will avoid additional homicides in 2013.

"There always seems to be, who knows for what reason, a rash of homicides right at the very beginning of the year, and then summer months tend to have more homicides," he said.

Calgary's count is even with Montreal, more than double the seven recorded to date in Ottawa but still far behind the 35 criminal deaths in Toronto.

Charges laid

Calgary police have laid charges in 15 of 16 homicides this year.

- The exception involves a June shooting that left 24-year-old Liban Hussein dead and another person seriously injured.

Saddlebrook

New temporary digs available for flood victims

Families started to move Thursday into a new temporary neighbourhood built for people who lost their homes in flood-ravaged High River.

Up to 60 families will live in a long line of trailers on a 40-hectare piece of land in the Saddlebrook neighbourhood north of the town.

They will join about 200 people who already call the trailer complex home.

"This is a positive step forward for these families who have been out of their homes for so long," said Rick Fraser, Alberta's associate minister of regional recovery and reconstruction.

Several hundred people lost their homes in the flood in June and ended up living at student residences in Calgary and Lethbridge.

People displaced by the floods have the option of moving into temporary housing or making their own arrangements. They are to receive their accommodations rent-free for the first 90 days.

The family trailers include a living room with a sofa, chair and television. There are shared laundry facilities and a simple bedroom with a closet.

More basic units have a bedroom and a shared bathroom.

Amenities at Saddlebrook include three restaurants, recreation and playground areas, housekeeping and medical support.

The Saddlebrook community was the first temporary neighbourhood to open.

Relief housing recently opened in the Siksika First Nation east of Calgary until a temporary neighbourhood is ready for that community.

Other temporary neighbourhoods are being considered near the Municipal District of Bighorn, Calgary and the Stoney Nakoda First Nation. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Grads push to add students to school trustee boards

Education. Other provinces have brought younger members into policy-making fold

Two recent Alberta high school grads have their sights set on injecting a little youthful vitality into public-school trustee boards.

Claire Edwards, 19, and Darren Touch, 18, who together founded advocacy group Student Voice Alberta, are urging current publicly elected school officials to add Grade 12 students to their respective boards.

Up north, Edwards has done enough to convince Edmonton Public Schools trustee chair Sarah Hoffman that the idea is worthwhile: Next month she and fellow members will debate a motion that, if passed, could see one more student representative added in time for the 2014-15 school year.

Locally, Touch says he's been in contact with Calgary Board of Education trustees Joy Bowen-Eyre, George Lane and Pamela King so far, and all have expressed interest in the idea.

"In the current system, there are student councils in some schools but not in others," he said. "We really need to create a basis first — a foundation — before we can go on to adding a student trustee."

Touch points to topics such as proposed changes to report cards, which will see numerical grades replaced with word-based assessments like "emerging" and "evident," as an area where trustees would benefit greatly by hearing directly from a student.

Trustee Sheila Taylor says she'd be delighted to explore options for more student interaction with the board, but she cautioned it could require a change in provincial legislation to actually add a youth trustee.

"Having one student is good, but involving many students is better," Taylor added. "We should have ways to go to our entire student population or large parts of our student population and listen to them."

CBE Chief Supt. Naomi Johnson does meet with students during the school year through senior and junior advisory councils — in 2012, 96 students took part.

Policies elsewhere

- Ontario mandated including student trustees on school boards in 1998. There, student votes are recorded but not counted and they can attend in-camera meetings, excluding those involving personnel matters.
- In New Brunswick, which added student trustees in 2009, student votes are counted but they can't attend in-camera meetings.
- The Vancouver School Board is making plans to a pilot a student-trustee program this fall.

Darren Touch with Student Voice Alberta hopes to add a Grade 12 representative to the Calgary Board of Education trustee ranks. CANDICE WARD/FOR METRO

Team of the Week. Girls' soccer squad up for big cash

Practice really has paid off for a young Calgary soccer team in the running for a $125,000 grand prize to go toward refurbishing a field in their community.

Hitting the field five to six times a week for practice is one of the reasons the U10 Blizzard Bayern were selected among the top 15 in Canada for BMO's Team of the Week competition.

Coach Jens Lipper says he submitted a letter about his team and was informed this spring they are in the running for the grand prize, which will be announced in September after a voting period from Aug. 5 to 19.

"I've rarely seen a team before that has dedication like these girls have," said Lipper.

Despite their season ending in June, nearly all of the 14 youngsters show up to every practice multiple times each week.

Ten-year-old Samantha Boag says she'd love to see her team's hard work pay off.

"It would be amazing to be the first team in Calgary to win it," she said.

HOW TO HAVE FUN IN CALGARY FOR $10 OR LESS

IN DEFENCE OF Mike Morrison
calgary@metronews.ca

Every year, thousands of Calgarians take to the waterways to float the summer days away.

Well, every year except this year.

If you're a fan of recreational activities on the water, the past couple of months have been anything but fun. And even though the Bow and Elbow rivers are now open, the city is still recommending caution and, judging by the number of water rescues over the past couple of weeks, that recommendation is not being heeded.

So this summer, instead of spending my weekends avoiding lifejacket-enforcing bylaw officers and pretending I'm not peeing in the river, I've been forced to look for new ways to enjoy the city that I've lived in for almost seven years now. And since I'm a writer, those new ways have to be cheap, preferably $10 or less.

Don't knock it till you've tried it

While I don't often know the movies playing at the Globe, most of the time they end up being either really great or really weird. Either way, it's better than sitting alone on a rainy patio.

Here's what I've found so far:

At only $10, the zoo is probably the best deal in town. While you don't get access to most of the zoo, your admission still gets you up close and personal with the incredibly cute penguins and the Canadian Wilds areas. Where else, other than dangerously parked in the middle of a national-park highway, can you get amazing photos of bears, cougars and mountain goats?

Since we seemingly can't get through a single day without some sort of warning from Environment Canada, the weather has been wreaking havoc on most of our summer plans. So, I've been spending a lot of my rainy evenings at the Globe cinema, especially on Tuesday nights when you can get a ticket for $6 and some pop and popcorn for another six bucks. While I don't often know the movies playing at the Globe, most of the time they end up being either really great or really weird. Either way, it's better than sitting alone on a rainy patio.

I've always heard that some of Calgary's biggest deals are negotiated on the fairways in and around the city. Since the deals I end up negotiating are exponentially smaller and often about trying to get free food, I ask people to meet on the mini-golf course. Sadly, Calgary is currently suffering a drought of really good mini-golf courses, but thanks to surprisingly tricky holes, WinSport's is good enough. With a round of mini-golf only costing $10, the green fees are noticeably cheaper than actual golf courses, which don't even have windmills.

The Calgary Fringe Festival, always wonderfully weird, continues through this weekend. The festival offers up lots of chances to see a slew of $10 shows, including Naked Improv. Now, I'm not sure what Naked Improv is about, but so far in my life I only have wonderful memories of both improv and being naked, though never at the same time. So a $10 ticket seems like a no-brainer.

If all else fails, let's all hang out at Shakespeare in the Park — just as long as you explain it to me.

Hiroshima, Nagasaki

Floating lanterns to mark Japan bombings

A group of Calgarians will honour those who perished 68 years ago in the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki with floating lanterns.

With the anniversary of Hiroshima on Aug. 6 and the Nagasaki anniversary on Aug. 9, Karen Huggins of Project Ploughshares Calgary said the Friday event is meant "to bring attention to the fact that there are a lot of people still manufacturing nuclear weapons.

"We'd like to see a better world for our children and grandchildren and not have to have them even think about the kind of devastation those weapons cause."

The floating lanterns will be placed on the reflecting pond at Olympic Plaza. The event begins at 8 p.m. METRO

s-PARK

'Temporary park' opening downtown

Calgary's first temporary street park — or s-PARK — has arrived.

"We're excited to pilot this new program" project manager Dawn Thome said. "Creating a new street park really reinvents the street environment."

The move came after council approved the creation of such spaces in more urban parts of the city that have fewer parks.

The s-PARK is on 10 Street S.W. between 6 and 7 avenues and will be in place Aug. 9 to 25. As a result, there will be a road closure on 10 Street S.W. at the south end of the block during that time.

The north end of the block will also be closed on weekends to allow for "recreational programming and community activities to animate the streetscape." METRO

The city plans to remove debris from the Riverdale-Sifton suspension bridge, then demolish the structure and rebuild it, along with two similar spans over the Elbow River. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO

Foot bridges won't be ready for at least another year

Pedestrian overpasses. Bridges form a 'fairly significant part of the pathway network,' city engineer says

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Three pedestrian suspension bridges over the Elbow River will cost as much as $9 million to rebuild and won't be in place for at least another year, says the city's chief structures engineer.

"Our traffic bridges did survive (the flood) very well; our pedestrian bridges not so much," Craig MacFarlane said Thursday, standing near the wrecked Riverdale-Sifton span over the Elbow.

That bridge, along with the Sandy Beach and Rideau Park pedestrian bridges, will be torn down and rebuilt.

The city has a tender out and MacFarlane expects the demolition to take place by mid-September.

Broken bridges

- Six other pedestrian bridges were also damaged during the flood, but not nearly as badly.
- "The other six are just being restored. They're being put back onto their foundations," MacFarlane said.
- Those six "small projects" are expected to cost about $500,000, he added.

As for the reconstruction?

"I couldn't say exactly when," he said. "I don't expect that it would occur until sometime next year. I would expect sometime summer-fall next year would be the very earliest we would see a replacement structure at this location."

The suspension bridges are about 75 years old and the new bridges will be built to modern construction standards, he added.

Harper says pipeline means 'energy security'

Energy East. PM claims project is about more than expanding markets, wants to make sure 'Canadians themselves benefit'

ANDREW VAUGHAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The proposed Energy East Pipeline isn't solely to transport Alberta's crude to world markets, but also to finally provide the East Coast with a large, secure supply of domestic oil, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said Thursday.

Harper was visiting the Irving Oil refinery in Saint John, where he said the TransCanada pipeline would benefit consumers in Atlantic Canada, a region that depends on foreign sources of oil.

"We're not just expanding our markets for our energy projects, which we need to do," said Harper, seated next Premier David Alward and Irving Oil chairman Arthur Irving.

"We are also at the same time making sure that Canadians themselves benefit from those projects and from that gain energy security."

Two teens face child porn charges in Parsons case

Cyberbullying. Father of 17-year-old who took her own life calls arrests 'bittersweet'

HALEY RYAN
Metro in Halifax

Two young men are facing child pornography charges in the case of Rehtaeh Parsons, nearly two years after her parents allege the teen was gang-raped and a photo of the incident was shared via social media.

On Thursday evening, Halifax police held a news conference to announce the charges.

"A young girl … experienced the harsh nature of a world of people wanting to do harm and using social media to do it," said Halifax Regional Police Chief Jean-Michel Blais.

"We hope that today's arrests help the community to heal," added Halifax RCMP Chief Supt. Roland Wells.

The young men, both 18, were arrested around 8 a.m. Thursday. One faces two counts of distributing child pornography, and the other charges of making and distributing child pornography.

Blais said no sexual assault charges will be laid because the Crown advised there was "insufficient evidence" to bring any to court.

Glen Canning, Rehtaeh's father, said it was a "bittersweet" moment when he learned of the arrests.

"On one hand I would want to be very happy and very grateful … on the other hand, it's a bit of a bittersweet moment because Rehtaeh's dead now, and it doesn't really make much of a difference to her," he said.

Rehtaeh, 17, took her own life in April after nearly two years of bullying following an alleged rape at a party when she was 15.

Shortly after, a photo of the alleged incident was sent around her school.

The two teens charged Thursday have been released from custody and will appear in Halifax Youth Court on Aug. 15.

Quoted

"I hope it provides some measure of comfort to family members."

Prime Minister Stephen Harper, on the arrests made in the Rehtaeh Parsons case.

Rehtaeh Parsons is shown in a handout photo from a Facebook tribute page. Police say two teens face child pornography charges in the case of Parsons, the 17-year-old Halifax girl who was taken off life support following a suicide attempt in April. FACEBOOK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Big dig unearths layers of London's history

Crossrail line. Britain's biggest construction project is also largest archeological dig in London for decades

Jewelry, pieces of ships, medieval ice skates, centuries-old skulls — work on a new railway line under the British capital is bringing centuries of buried history to light.

In London's busy business core, archeologists have struck pay dirt, uncovering everything from a chunk of Roman road to dozens of 2,000-year-old horseshoes, some golden 16th-century bling — and the bones of long-dead Londoners.

The 2,000-year history of London goes deep — 5 to 6 metres deep, the distance between today's street level and sidewalks in Roman times. The Crossrail line is providing archeologists with a chance to dig down through those centuries and beyond.

The railway will run across London with a central 21-kilometre section underground. That has meant tunnelling beneath some of the city's oldest, most densely populated sections. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 100 archeologists at 40 excavation sites have found everything from mammoth bones dating back 68,000 years to a Tudor manor house, medieval ice skates, an 800-year-old ship and an 18th-century shipyard.

California still dreaming? Climate change impacting forests, animals: Report

Coastal waters off California are getting more acidic. Conifer forests on the lower slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains have moved to higher elevations over the past half-century.

Climate change is affecting natural resources in California, a report released Thursday by an arm of the California Environmental Protection Agency found. The findings are an update to a 2009 report that documented how a warming California is impacting the environment, wildlife and people.

Among the known impacts: Butterflies in the Central Valley region are emerging from hiding earlier in the spring; glaciers in the Sierra Nevada have shrunk; and spring runoff from snowmelt has declined, affecting Central Valley farmers and hydroelectric plants.

Expect more heat waves, wildfires and higher sea levels as the state warms, the report said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Airport closed by Israel after Egypt warns of attacks

Eilat. Airport in the Red Sea resort closed briefly because of possible attacks from Egyptian territory

Israel briefly prevented landings at an airport in the Red Sea resort of Eilat on Thursday, as Egyptian officials warned of possible rocket attacks coming from its territory on the Sinai Peninsula.

The partial closure was in effect for about two hours before being lifted Thursday evening, said a military spokesman, Lt. Col. Peter Lerner. Lerner said the decision to close the Eilat airport was made as a result of a security assessment, but he did not elaborate.

Eilat, on Israel's southern tip, is a major destination for domestic and international tourists. It is close to the Sinai, where Islamic militants and tribesmen have defied Egyptian security for years.

An Egyptian security official said that the country received intelligence suggesting terrorist groups planned to fire missiles Friday at Israel, as well as at locations in northern Sinai and the Suez Canal. Militants have fired rockets from the Sinai toward Eilat in the past. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 10 dead in gas explosion

A cat was pulled alive from the ruins of an apartment that collapsed in a huge gas explosion in Rosario, but with 11 people still missing, rescuers tried without success Thursday to find human victims.

"Until we remove the last brick, we'll always expect to find people alive," federal police commissioner Angel Poidomani, leading one of the rescue teams, told Rosario's La Capital newspaper. More than 60 people were injured in the blast. Authorities have identified 10 of those killed and there were conflicting reports about a possible 11th death. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CALGARY DEALERSHIP CLEARING OUT ALL USED INVENTORY UP TO 50% OFF!

Carl Holst, Sales Manager of StampedeToyota, just announced plans to hold a vehicle summer clear out taking Place Saturday August 10, 2013. According to Mr. Holst increased sales from the last few months have resulted in an overstock of trade-ins. "In the last three months our sales have increased at a higher than expected rate", Holst said. "Now, we must reduce the number of cars and trucks on our used lot to a more manageable number. During this vehicle summer clear-out sale every used car and truck will be sold from 10% up to 50% off its original asking price." Mr. Holst said. "In fact, cars that normally sell for five to eight thousand dollars will be sold for three to five thousand," Mr. Holst said. "Our customers will find these prices even lower than at wholesale auctions."

One of Calgary's largest import dealers is overstocked and is forced to sell used cars and trucks for as low as 50% OFF, Saturday August 10, 2013, during a one-day sale event.

Auction bidding often inflates the true value of a car so you pay more. Here every car is on sale, first come first served and no bidding. It's the perfect opportunity to get a good quality new or used car at the lowest price in the city. All cars will be on display at Stampede Toyota on Barlow Trail, 2 blocks north of the Trans Canada Highway. This sale is one day only, doors open at 8:30am. Prices are posted on the windshield you will be given the opportunity to purchase the vehicle at these amazingly reduced sale prices. This innovative approach to selling used vehicles will make it easy and quick for anybody in the market for a good used vehicle to get a great car or truck at a very low price with no hassle.

"Wholesale buyers will be represented to take trade-ins during the sale," Mr. Holst said. "We also have three business managers who will help buyers arrange low-cost financing. We've got over $10 Million Dollars in inventory to choose from. Our total inventory will be close to 600 new and used cars and trucks to choose from. We want to remind everyone that this is a one-day sale only. When our inventory has been reduced, we will remove the sale prices and return to normal operations. Since we are a local business we would like to give back to the community," Mr. Holst said. "We would rather allow local people to buy these overstocked vehicles than wholesale them at an auction." All cars will be clearly marked with discounts from 10% up to 50% for the entire day. Due to the volume of sales during this event, please no telephone inquiries.

Is this bull?

For some, meat grown from stem cells instead of harvested from animals is an answer to the age-old problem of killing one creature for another's enjoyment. To others, the whole idea just seems ridiculous

METRO IN LONDON, ONT.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingrid Newkirk, president of PETA

Is it meat?
"It is real meat — it's flesh. It's muscle cells, when you're eating it you're eating animal flesh."

Would you eat it?
"I don't need to try it; it doesn't interest me personally. If someone made a bet, (something like) Canada would go vegetarian today to eat it, I'd do it. If it helped to reduce suffering, I'd do it on a bet."

Michael Kuijpers, Vegan Activists of London, Ont.

Is it meat?
"Yes."

Would you eat it?
"I don't think so because it was grown from stem cells.... I support it (though) — any alternative that would help decrease the demand for animal products is a great thing."

Dr. Greg Kelly, biology professor, Western University

Is it meat?
"I'd say it's meat.... You're bathing the cells in growth factors, nutrients, things the cells need to grow."

Would you eat it?
"Sure, why not? I mean I'm not a big fan of veggie burgers, but it's an alternative. It's what you put on it that makes it tasty."

Niki Hambalek, owner of the Hungary Butcher in London, Ont.

Is it meat?
"No. I would call it artificial meat. How could you call it beef? That's lying, right?"

Would you eat it?
"Not at all. I wouldn't even consider it. I don't see any difference in cloning or doing this. How is it going to affect my health in 10 years?"

Vinod Sharma, president of United Hindu Congress of Canada

Is it meat?
"It is not natural-grown food."

Would you eat it?
"Absolutely not.... First of all, Hindu (people) don't eat beef. Secondly, we are totally against any kind of production of artificial meat for human consumption."

Paul Sharpe, cattle farmer, Sharpe Farms near Guelph, Ont.

Is it meat?
"No. Is it very interesting? Yes. It's a topic of conversation, yes, but is it the same thing to me? No."

Would you eat it?
"Sure, I would eat it, and I'm sure it's not going to kill me. I'm not afraid of that. Would I eat it on an ongoing basis? No."

Meat never past its stem-cell-by date

The world is our oyster, er, better yet, meat market

A T. rex steak? A woolly mammoth taco? How about your grouchy old boss served up (quite literally) on a silver platter?

In theory, we could someday be eating it all without hurting anyone or anything — taken straight from stem cells lovingly nurtured in a petri dish and dished up on your dinner table.

Maastricht University in the Netherlands is at the root of what could become a modern food marvel. A team there has unveiled a hamburger (valued at $340,000) that was grown in a lab instead of cut from a cow.

And, experts say, that's only the start of where this could all wind up.

Simply put, if this whole thing shakes out, stem cells from pretty much anything we can get our hands on could be cultivated, grilled and enjoyed — depending on how strong your stomach is, of course.

Television. However, telecom regulator says it plans to review rules for news channels

Sun News Network says it will stay on the air while the CRTC reviews the way news channels are regulated in Canada.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission on Thursday rejected the network's bid to be carried on basic cable, casting fresh doubts on the future of the controversial upstart broadcaster.

But the CRTC also says it will review the regulations for news channels in Canada.

"The diversity of voices is an essential component of our society, particularly as they relate to news and information in the Canadian broadcasting system," CRTC chairman Jean-Pierre Blais said in a statement.

"Television news channels provide an important public service by ensuring that Canadians are exposed to different opinions and perspectives on matters that concern all citizens. We are concerned that, under the existing rules, Canadian news services are not being given a pride of place in our broadcasting system."

Road safety. Herzog teams up with AT&T for short film on texting and driving

In his documentaries, Werner Herzog has examined grizzly bears, plane crash survivors, cave paintings and death row inmates. For his latest project, the filmmaker is exploring the dangers of texting while driving in From One Second to the Next, a 35-minute short film that emotionally recounts how lives have been forever changed by the issue.

"I knew I could do it because it has to do with catastrophic events invading a family," said Herzog, 70. "In one second, entire lives are either wiped out or changed forever. That kind of emotional resonance is something that I knew I could cover."

The documentary, which tells the stories of both victims and perpetrators, is available to watch at ItCanWait.com and will be distributed by AT&T to more than 40,000 high schools, as well as hundreds of safety organizations and government agencies.

1 When the dealin's done. Amazon founder Jeff Bezos bought the Washington Post from the Grahams to whom it belonged for 80 years. The sale came as a surprise to many, so when Post Co. CEO Donald E. Graham was asked why he would sell his family business so suddenly, he said, "Look, I'm old. It's a newspaper, and the guy had $250 million." Touché, Donny.

2 Global warming. A new study revealed worrisome statistics from 2012. Rising sea levels and melting ice reached alarming levels. Temperatures were only slightly affected but have been increasing at a rate of about 1.5 C per decade over the last 50 years. In short, I may not have to worry in my lifetime, but we should all probably stop having kids.

3 Shark week. Headlines read "Dead shark found on NYC subway." Firstly, do we need the word 'dead' here? Or is it not enough that in a densely populated city, someone could enter a station with a three-foot-long stinking sea creature, wait for the train, drag it in before the doors close, and place it under a row of seats without anyone noticing?

4 'Sppeling' be. Twelve-year-old Thomas Hurley III misspelled the final Jeopardy! answer 'Emanciptation Proclamation,' which judges deemed unacceptable. The commotion caused by this completely overshadowed the fact that the real winner not only had the answer spelled correctly, but that his record-breaking score of $66,000 meant that Thomas had zero chance of winning anyway. But maybe I'm just 'nipticking.'

5 Grand slam. It was a big week for 38-year-old Alex Rodriguez who returned to baseball this week after his second hip surgery in four years. A-Rod also received a suspension for drug use, which he is appealing on the basis that, at his age and stage of his career, pretty much anything would qualify as "performance-enhancing."

6 Birthday suit. When asked if she was uncomfortable with the nudity and risqué sexuality in playing the role of Linda Lovelace, Amanda Seyfried shrugged and said, "It's a costume really. Just a naked body. We all look the same." Umm, no, but that's why I love Amanda Seyfried.

7 The Bachelorette. If I understand this correctly, Desiree told the final bachelor, "I publicly declared my love for another contestant who told me he didn't feel the same (just last week), and it made me realize I was in love with you all along." Ah, the romantic story we all long to tell our kids, and it's all on video. Cheers!

8 This week in music. In 1975 The Bee Gees hit No. 1 in America with Jive Talkin', which was the group's second U.S. chart-topper on the road to many more. They were also the first known white people to ever use that phrase.

9 Piano in the dark. The Canadian music community suffered a loss this week when James Gray died of a sudden heart attack. James was just 52, and played keyboards for the Rheostatics, Vital Sines, and Blue Rodeo. Among the countless artists who had the pleasure to work with Gray, he will be fondly remembered. His death leaves a gaping hole in the music community. As for me, I thank him for the songs he leaves behind.

Underground station for sale

Brompton Road underground station, now disused, in central London, is up for sale for about $31 million.

The station is near to the historic Brompton Oratory church and the ritzy Harrods department store. It opened in 1906 but turned out to be too close to other stations to attract many passengers, and was closed in 1934.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once also used by military in WWII

Brompton Road station is being sold by the Ministry of Defence, which bought the building in the 1936, when it became an army anti-aircraft headquarters, protecting London from German bombers during the Blitz.

The ministry, which is selling several properties and laying off thousands of soldiers in a cost-cutting drive, says the building has been declared "surplus to requirements" and will be put up for sale next month. The site includes a station building covered in the distinctive oxblood-coloured tiles of London Underground's Piccadilly Line. The ministry said the interior includes "a drill hall, garages, offices and mess," as well as elevator shafts and underground passages — though not the subway tunnels, which remain in use and belong to London's transit operator.

Synopsis

Set in 2154, humanity has split into two sections, the one per cent, who live on an Eden called Elysium that hovers high above Earth, and the 99 per cent who toil on what's left of our planet. The one per cent have it all plus medical care that can cure any ailment. On earth Max (Matt Damon) is an ex-thief who has always dreamed of living in Elysium and is now working a straight job to save enough to buy a ticket. When he's exposed to a lethal dose of radiation he makes a deal with a crime boss (Wagner Moura) who hires him to do a job for a one-way ticket to Elysium. Metro's Liz Brown sits in for Mark Breslin.

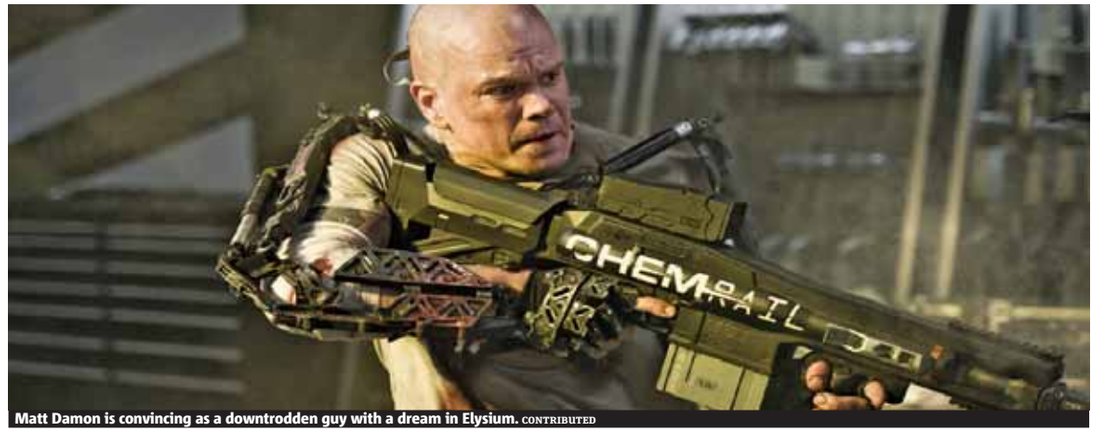
Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN



Matt Damon is convincing as a downtrodden guy with a dream in Elysium. CONTRIBUTED

Back to the future?

Elysium. District 9 director's return to the big screen isn't as sci-fi fresh as his debut

Richard: Liz, director Neill Blomkamp's big screen debut, District 9, was a fresh slice of sci-fi with a real beating heart. He brings that same kind of humanity to Elysium, but it doesn't feel quite as fresh this time around. It's exciting, has some great action and ideas and everybody's boyfriend Matt Damon, but for all that, it feels much more standard than I hoped it would be. What did you think?

Liz: Richard, Elysium isn't as fresh because it's District 9 with prettier faces. There's an unfair class system, a guy who undergoes a grotesque transformation and the same dusty shanty towns. I even thought Blomkamp recycled footage from District 9 — the Los Angeles of 2154 looks oddly like the Prawn camp outside Johannesburg. But a shredded Matt Damon is a nice addition to the somewhat tired story.

RC: I should make it clear that I liked most of this movie. I think the setup is interesting, even if it is reminiscent of everything from Oblivion and even WALL-E, and for the first hour it does what great sci-fi should do, comment on the human condition. But then it becomes an ordinary bash-'em and beat-'em action movie with sentimental and mawkish overtones. It's not bad, and, in fact, at times is pretty great, just not as great as I expected.

LB: While the story was meh, for me, the bash-'em-up scenes were great. Watching Matt Damon and a deranged Sharlto Copley tangle in some mortal combat was a lot of fun. I thought Copley — who was the wimpy Wikus in District 9 — really stole the show in his role as a rogue secret service agent.

RC: Copley is entertaining, chewing through the scenery like he hasn't eaten in a week. Damon also impresses. He's believable as both the sensitive guy with a dream and the lethal, half-cyborg warrior capable of opening a can of futuristic whoop ass on everyone in his way. Jodie Foster is nicely cast as the ice cold Donald-Rumsfeld-style villain, but I found her perfect diction really distracting. Every word she says seemed to have its own finely honed shape to the point where I almost had a hard time understanding what she was saying.

LB: Foster wasn't the only one with distracting diction. I found the fast-talk in this film impossible to understand. I'm still not sure of the finer points of the Earthling plan to invade Elysium and maybe Matt Damon missed them too, judging from the way things go terribly wrong. He really got a raw deal didn't he? Only Damon could take on a lethal radiation dose, sketchy Tijuana-style surgery and a few beatings and still save the day.

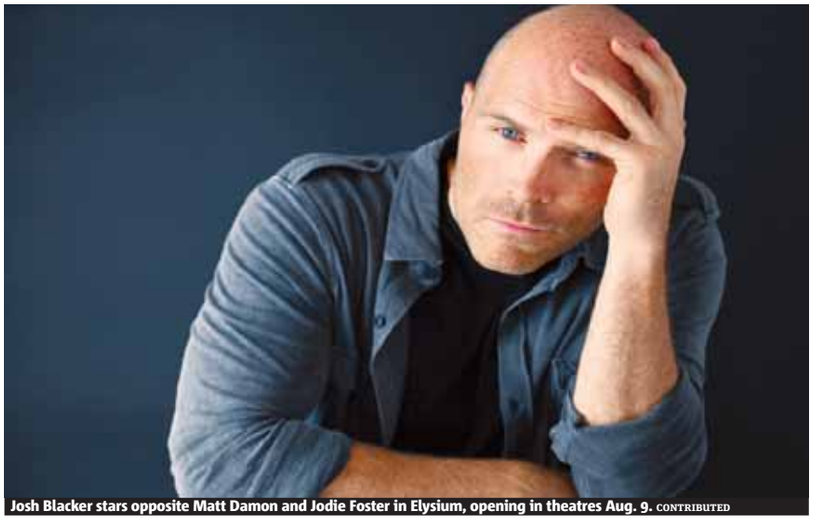
Objection! My destiny is to act — preferably with Matt Damon

Josh Blacker. 'I didn't want to be a lawyer ... I wanted to be a person pretending to be a lawyer,' the Elysium star says

KATE WEBB
Metro in Vancouver



Josh Blacker stars opposite Matt Damon and Jodie Foster in Elysium, opening in theatres Aug. 9. CONTRIBUTED

It took Josh Blacker a few years of working as a litigator to realize that law was not nearly as dramatic a career path as he had hoped it would be.

The Vancouver actor, now 40, had pictured himself making passionate, nuanced arguments in front of a judge, but in practise his days in court were rare, and when he did go he found the script he had to follow was boring.

"I think what happened was I watched an episode of L.A. law, and thought, 'That would be fun,' and then realized later on that, in fact, I didn't want to be a lawyer," he told Metro in a recent phone interview from L.A.

"I wanted to be a person pretending to be a lawyer."

In 2004 he packed up and moved from Calgary to Vancouver to pursue his other lifelong dream, acting, which paid off big time when he was cast in Elysium: Oscar-nominated writer/director Neill Blomkamp's blockbuster sci-fi followup to District 9.

Set in the year 2154, two classes of people exist: the very wealthy who live on a pristine man-made space station called Elysium, and the rest, who live on an overpopulated, ruined Earth.

Starring opposite Jodie Foster, Matt Damon, Sharlto Copley, Diego Luna, Brandon Auret, and Alice Braga, Blacker plays Crowe, a South African mercenary sent to protect Elysium.

Blacker happens to have been born and raised in South Africa, so when he found out Blomkamp was casting a South African for the film, he says he felt he was destined to play the part. It is also the type of role in which he was comfortable and experienced, having appeared on a number of Vancouver-shot sci-fi TV shows such as Supernatural and Stargate: Atlantis.

"Most of the time I play some pretty bad dudes," he said. "I've played marines and convicts and mercenaries and occasionally some guy that maybe you're not sure about that lives next door."

Blacker said working with Damon and Foster was a "dream come true" and called his feature film debut the most amazing experience of his career to date.

"He's exactly as you would expect him to be," he said of Damon. "He's grounded and warm as you would expect him to be, and he has a really great sense of humour. He's just a terrific guy and you can understand why he's one of the most bankable stars out there."

Elysium opens in IMAX and theatres nationwide on Aug. 9.

Making Deep Throat. Azaria more than a voice

MATT PRIGGE
Metro World News in New York

Hank Azaria CONTRIBUTED

Hank Azaria is more often heard than seen, given that he's about to start his 25th season as the voice of Moe, Apu, Chief Wiggum, Comic Book Guy, et al. on The Simpsons. But he has a long history in front of the camera as well.

He can currently be seen, under impressive makeup, as Gargamel in The Smurfs 2. The flip side of his talents can be seen in Lovelace, a biopic about the making of the legendary box office juggernaut porn Deep Throat, in which he plays the film's director, Jerry Damiano.

You were very young when Deep Throat came out. How aware of it were you then?
You heard about it. It was a big deal. I remember hearing Deep Throat and confusing it with Watergate. I knew it was sexual, but I obviously never saw the film, at least back then.

What attracted you to the project?
People were asking me if I had second thoughts doing it. I could imagine why Amanda (Seyfried, who plays star Linda Lovelace) might have second thoughts, with all the nudity. But I can't imagine why anyone else would. Post-Boogie Nights, why would anybody hesitate? You'd think I'd been asked to do a porn.

How did you prepare for the role?
There was a lot of interview footage of this guy. He's much like I portray him — he was very sweet and open and enthusiastic and thinking he was making art. He loved making movies, and loved pornography. It wasn't "Oh, s—, I wanted to be a filmmaker and I got stuck here!" This guy really loved making adult movies and wanted them to be as great as they could be, almost in a childlike way.

Was it easy to get into that '70s vibe?
The wardrobe and the hair really did that for us. It's hard not to feel like you're in the '70s when you're dressed head-to-toe in polyester. I found myself very grateful we're no longer in the polyester era, even though I wore it as a kid. Boy, is that stuff uncomfortable and ridiculous. It's like wearing plastic. It doesn't breathe.

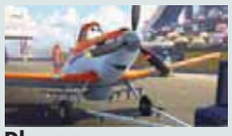
Comedy



Planes

Director. Klay Hall

Stars. Dane Cook, Stacy Keach, Brad Garrett

After narrowly qualifying for the Wings Around the World Rally, Dusty (voice of Dane Cook), a single-propeller crop duster with a fear of heights, recruits the help of retired Navy Corsair Skippy (voice of Stacy Keach) to teach him how to win. Unfortunately the race's reigning champ Ripslinger (Roger Craig Smith) feels threatened by Dusty and conspires to dash his high hopes. Planes plays like an airborne Cars, but has a definite direct-to-DVD feel about it. There are good messages about the benefits of honesty and hard work, but the dull story never takes flight. RICHARD CROUSE

Documentary

Kevin Hart: Let Me Explain

Director. Leslie Small

Stars. Kevin Hart

Few comedians have more than 60 minutes of solid material, so feature films of pure standup are few and far between. To flesh-out Let Me Explain's running time, Kevin Hart, arguably one of the most popular standups going, kicks off the flick with a meandering sketch that shifts into a stat-heavy travelogue of his world tour. Finally getting down to the comedy, Hart performs to a sold-out audience at New York's Madison Square Garden. Hart is, as always, likeable, if not hilarious, but frenetic editing distracts from his performance. IAN GORMELY

Drama

Lovelace

Director. Rob Epstein, Jeffrey Friedman

Stars. Amanda Seyfried, Peter Sarsgaard

Amanda Seyfried inhabits the role of '70s porn star Linda Lovelace with aplomb, but the movie is laboured and disappointing. Besides sanitizing the sex trade sequences, directors Rob Epstein and Jeffrey Friedman fail to really say anything about their subject, settling instead for a standard showbiz rise-and-fall structure. Peter Sarsgaard overacts badly as Linda's controlling husband Chuck Traynor, while an unrecognizable Sharon Stone is trolling for an Oscar as her long-suffering suburban-prisoner mom. ADAM NAYMAN

Comedy

I'm So Excited

Director. Pedro Almodovar

Stars. Javier Camara, Cecilia Roth

Possessing a terribly incongruous mix of tones, I'm So Excited feels like a rare misstep for feted Spanish filmmaker Pedro Almodovar. A malfunction puts a passenger plane in jeopardy as it prepares for an emergency landing. Inside a trio of campy male flight attendants do their best to put all at ease, often through drink and drugs. At first the bawdy one-liners are a refreshing change from Hollywood's recent parade of awkward, mean-spirited comedy. But the jokes and the sexual innuendo soon grow thin. IAN GORMELY

Drama

Fruitvale Station

Director. Ryan Coogler

Stars. Michael B. Jordan, Octavia Spencer

Don't be fooled, Fruitvale Station is a horror story — pure and simple. The true tale of Oscar Grant (a 22-year-old father fatally shot by transit cops on New Year's Day in 2009), this drama delivers a gripping examination of meaningless tragedy. Although a few coincidences seem oddly cooked-up by budding filmmaker Ryan Coogler, captivating performances and the impending doom makes this movie a mesmerizing — albeit tough — 85 minutes to sit through. STEVE GOW

British actor Mark Strong as homicide Det. Frank Agnew, left, and David Costabile as Simon Boyd in a scene from Low Winter Sun, premiering Aug. 11. CONTRIBUTED

Portrait of a city at sunset

Low Winter Sun. AMC's new drama is a dark, powerful portrayal of the city of Detroit's demise and a cop in its grip

You don't need a TV drama to tell you these are dark days for Detroit.

But a once-great city's status facing bankruptcy serves as poignant timing for the debut of Low Winter Sun, a gritty cop show whose Motor City setting gives this unforgiving saga even greater urgency.

Low Winter Sun premieres on AMC Sunday at 10 p.m. EDT right after the mid-season premiere of Breaking Bad, adding up to quite a drama-series twofer. Low Winter Sun is not a series for the faint of heart.

Detroit at this moment proves an all-too-apt backdrop, an even more accommodating setting than the show's creative team might have planned.

For starters, the police and all they survey in their bleak precinct are in desperate straits, even down to the paint flecking off the station house's walls.

And then, the show's presumed hero, homicide Det. Frank Agnew, participates in a terrible act — he executes a fellow cop — that promises to keep him in a desperate state for the season to come.

On some level, it's a justifiable act.

Det. Brendan McCann is corrupt, depraved and a menace to his fellow officers and the citizens alike.

So McCann's fed-up partner, Joe Geddes, conspires with Agnew (who nurses a particularly personal urge for payback) to drown him in a kitchen sink, then fake his suicide at the wheel of his car plunged into the Detroit River.

Despite their best efforts, this won't be the perfect crime they meant to engineer.

Suspicions of foul play are immediately raised. An investigation is launched.

Haunted by his deed and his possible exposure, Agnew is powerfully played by Mark Strong, the British actor who originated this role for the British series and whose credits also include such films as Body of Lies, Syriana, Sherlock Holmes and Green Lantern.

Bald, wiry and taciturn, he is first glimpsed with tears rolling down his cheeks.

"I'm not a bad person," he tells Geddes as the moment nears for them to carry out their plan.

"No," says Geddes, "but (McCann) is. The man's a disease."

There seems little doubt of that. But Geddes — played by Lennie James, whose TV credits include The Walking Dead, Hung and Jericho — just may be as compromised as the cop he helps kill, and may have set up Agnew as his partner in crime.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit by any other name

- Of course, piling on Detroit is not the point of the series, nor is this locale even essential to its story. The series is adapted from a British miniseries that was set in Edinburgh, Scotland.

The complex nature of The White Queen

Ten-episode drama. Max Irons and Rebecca Ferguson star as a Royal couple whose coming together ruffled many feathers in the 15th century

As Woody Allen would famously declare five centuries later, "The heart wants what it wants." That goes double when you're England's dashing young King Edward IV, who, after he and Elizabeth Woodville meet on a forest trail, realizes he simply must have her.

Elizabeth is sweet on Edward, too. But she draws the line at being just the latest of his majesty's sexual conquests.

What can Edward, who confesses "I'm mad for you," do to win her over? He asks for her hand. Thus begins the saga of The White Queen, a 10-episode drama premiering Saturday at 8 p.m. EDT on Starz (with a preview airing on Friday at 10 p.m. EDT).

Adapted from the historical novel The Cousins' War and its sequels, this series is more than a moony romance. Beginning in 1464, it finds Edward leading the House of York in a battle with his own family's House of Lancaster. Nothing less than the throne is at stake.

This imbroglio is further aggravated by Edward's impetuous marriage. Not only is Elizabeth a commoner with two young sons, but also the widow of a Lancastrian who died in the struggle against Edward.

Can Edward prevail in this War of the Roses? Will his love of Elizabeth survive all the obstacles? "The consequences of this marriage were seismic — alienating allies and creating enemies," said Max Irons, who stars as the starry-eyed monarch and is the son of Jeremy Irons. "But Edward was capable of dealing with them."

So was Elizabeth, a woman who is as tough and politically savvy as she is beautiful.

History holds all the spoilers to the series' major questions, but no rote account does justice to the on-screen crackle between Edward and Elizabeth, who, as played by Irons and Rebecca Ferguson, are the summer's reigning It pair.

In a recent joint interview, both actors laughed nervously at that characterization.

"I don't think it's very healthy to think of yourselves as the next hot screen couple," said Irons, who, in what they both insist is mere coincidence, is clad like Ferguson in fashionable black slacks and top.

"To me, it doesn't feel like a love story per se," said Ferguson. "There's so much more happening!"

The Swedish-born Ferguson, 29, recalled first meeting Irons in front of the director, producers and other power brokers.

"I think I actually said, 'I'm so nervous I barely know my name,'" she laughed. "You said, 'I'm a bit nervous, too.' And that disarmed the situation."

The biggest challenge to working together? Their sex scenes, the two answered in unison. "We're very comfortable with each other," said Ferguson, "but getting naked in front of each other and 30 other people was a bit awkward," added Irons.

"We had our own wishes about how it should be shot. I wanted my arms up constantly, so they would look in good shape," said Ferguson as Irons chimed in. "I wanted CGI muscles!" THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Power to Surprise

The most epic bathroom break in TV history

Interview. Bryan Cranston on Walter White's future in Breaking Bad's final season and the nature of his character

MEREDITH ENGEL
Metro World News

If you're not caught up on Breaking Bad, you might want to stop reading here. But if you are caught up, you know that last season's cliffhanging finale ended with DEA agent Hank Schrader picking up some very special reading material while on the toilet — evidence to incriminate his brother-in-law, Walter White, for orchestrating the drug ring Schrader has had his eyes on since the first season.

While you might have been waiting with baited breath to find out what happens when Hank comes out of that bathroom, Bryan Cranston tells Metro he wasn't.

"I didn't ask for the whole year," says Cranston, who has played the series' lead Walter White since 2008.

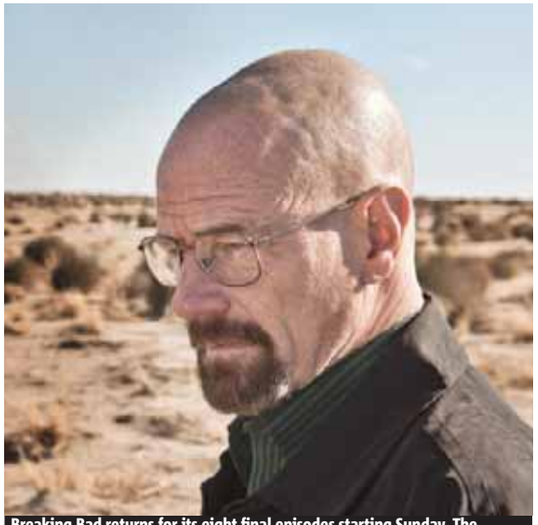
He says he only got the script about two weeks before the episode began shooting. "I don't need to have a lot of information in my head."

Fans won't have to wait much longer to discover what happens next, as the series returns for its final eight episodes beginning Sunday. Cranston himself was mum about the series finale when we spoke to him last month. But he did share plenty of insight into a series he calls a "cautionary tale," about a man whose hunger for power just couldn't be satiated.

How many people know the ending right now?
Maybe about 20. It's gonna go up to about 200. … There are several things that happen, as you might guess, in the last eight — many twists and turns that you will gasp at.

Why do you think people from all walks of life really connect to this show?
Well, I think because it's honest. We're exploring sociopolitical relationships. Some people were gleaning that, "Oh, this is a condemnation of the medical care system in the United States, because here's a man who is a teacher, and a well educated man, and he cannot provide for his family." … We are telling this story in that manner that is resonating with people because it's not about drug manufacturing or drug usage; this story is about decisions that people make and the slippery slope that (can) happen.

Are you happy with Walt's ending?
I'm very pleased. You know, there was apprehension of reading the last episode because once you read the last episode, there's no more episodes to read — it's just like, whoa, I don't want it to end. But I can honestly say that fans of our show will be very pleased, very satisfied with the outcome. It's very Breaking Bad — unapologetic and very appropriate. We cover it all. I can tell you this: There's not going to be a sense of, "Wait a minute, what?" That's not going to be the case with Breaking Bad.



Breaking Bad returns for its eight final episodes starting Sunday. The long-awaited showdown places Hank Schrader in direct conflict with the villainous hero, Walter White. FRANK OCKENFELS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Half Disclosure on the dance revolution

Q&A. Metro chats with one brother of U.K. dance sensation act on underage clubbing, the return of house music and groupies

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News

You couldn't put a set of fresher faces to the UK dance music revival than that of Disclosure's Guy Lawrence, 22, and brother Howard, 19.

Not that the duo, flanked by outfits like Rudimental and Duke Dumont, see it as a revival.

"It's always been there," protests Howard.

He's right. The self-confessed music geeks from Surrey, southeast England, know their music and have made a pitch-perfect judgment of the industry landscape: singles Latch and White Noise (featuring AlunaGeorge) have both claimed top 10 positions in the UK charts, while their debut album Settle also secured No. 1.

Despite the hype and sell-out U.S. and European tours, the siblings, who reference early influences from Kate Bush and Peter Gabriel to J Dilla and A Tribe Called Quest, keep their public profile on the down-low.

In fact, they've only just moved out of their parents' home. Metro recently had a talk with Howard:

It's been a pretty intense year for you guys. How are you handling the schedule?
Yeah, man, it's been pretty crazy. We've had a very intense touring schedule along with trying to finish our album — it's been intense, but really good.

Festivals are always a big night out, so will you be partying post-show?
I would love to say that we'd stay and party but I'm afraid we've got to play three more festivals on that weekend, so we'll be heading straight off.

Are you ever at home these days?
We're on the road 90 per cent of the time. We get, like, one day home once a fortnight — something like that.

You first started playing in clubs at age 15. Did you ever have any trouble gaining entry?
Um, yeah. That used to happen most times we played clubs (laughs). They'd just say "No" straight away and you'd have to call the manager of the club and he'd come down and generally put me behind the decks, tell me to play and then say "get out".

No booze, I take it?
A soft drink, if that, man.

Are you starting to pick up or get offers from groupies?
Yeah, yeah, quite a lot (chuckles). One in Seattle was quite funny. I was standing at one side of my workstation and then I turned around and there was like a note on my keyboard. So someone had somehow got onto the stage and put this note on there without me seeing. It was a phone number with a message saying, "Call me after the show, I'll be waiting around the back." I was like, "Oh my god."

How does your girlfriend take propositions like that?
She's okay. I don't drink, so I think it's easier for her to trust me.

You don't drink or do drugs, so what is your vice?
I just dance. I just dance loads.

Alan Thicke doesn't think his son's song has any links to non-consensual sex. "It's still a guy waiting for permission," he says while talking about the chart-conquering hit Blurred Lines. CONTRIBUTED

Papa Thicke defends Blurred Lines

Alan Thicke wants to clear the air on Blurred Lines, his son Robin's chart-conquering smash hit that has generated plaudits and controversy practically in equal measure.

The single has been criticized for its risqué video — which features the junior Thicke along with collaborators Pharrell Williams and Atlanta rapper T.I. cavorting with topless models — as well as a lyrical refrain that allegedly implies a link to non-consensual sex ("I know you want it").

But the artist's Canadian-reared dad argues that critics are missing the point.

"I think that there are blurred lines within the Blurred Lines," the affable 66-year-old said in a telephone interview from his California home.

"T.I.'s rap is kind of graphic, Robin's point of view I think in his own parts of the song ... is kind of female empowerment when you look at it. It's not so much, 'We know you want it' — it's, 'We hope you want it.' It's still a guy waiting for permission, saying 'I'm not your maker.'" THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alan Thicke quotes:

- "We're not doing the Anthony Weiner story here, (they're) just kind of putting it out there playfully and we'll see who responds."
- "Most of the other videos for years have been about booty. ... For some reason when they switched from booty to boobie, everyone went nuts."

Lindsay Lohan. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Did Lindsay Lohan find a star-crossed lover in rehab?

Rehab was apparently a lot more fun for Lindsay Lohan than we previously thought — at least until a fellow Cliffside Malibu patient was reportedly kicked out for inappropriate sexual relations with the actress, according to Radar Online.

Lohan and the mystery man began "dating" shortly after she checked in, another patient claims.

"Prior to Lindsay's arrival I was roommates with the guy who ended up dating her. When she came, the first or second day they ended up kissing and it was on from there," the source says.

"Everybody in rehab knew they were dating. It was pretty obvious. But the guy eventually got kicked out because of Lindsay. The guy who owns Cliffside slacked on the rules for Lindsay, but they got cocky with their relationship and people got uncomfortable with the situation, saying they couldn't do that stuff when people are trying to get well. I know that's why he was asked to leave. They interviewed everyone about it, and all the girls ratted them out because they hated Lindsay."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

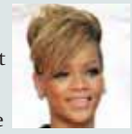
The Word

Beyoncé, and more celebs who chopped their hair off

The unthinkable has happened. Beyoncé, who pretty much runs the world right now, with her inexplicably voluminous waves flowing in her hip-shaking wake, has gone for the chop. She posted photos to her Instagram today of the bleached-blond do, immediately dividing her five million plus followers. In recognition of this monumental moment, we reflect on other celebrities who have divided the world with their haircut.

Anne Hathaway
The Les Mis star has never had the best luck with public opinion in the first place, but when she cut off her hair for the role of Fantine, things got messy. Alongside the usual haters you actually had Hathaway joining in herself, saying she looked like her "gay brother" and claiming to be "inconsolable."

Emma Watson
Hermione without her signature bushy long hair is almost as shocking as Beyoncé without her iconic locks.



Rihanna
When Rihanna first went for the crop it signalled the end of the Pon de Replay era and the beginning of the provocative singer as we now know her.

Miley Cyrus
What better way to wave her Disney days goodbye than with a bleached pixie cut? The new, punked-up Miley was probably a bit of a surprise to her pre-teen fan base. She's still working on making her image click. METRO

Amanda Bynes.

Drake speaks out on Amanda Bynes' obsession

With Amanda Bynes safely under psychiatric care and off Twitter — for the moment, at least — Drake is finally speaking out about the troubled actress' seeming obsession with him that resulted in a steady barrage of tweets calling him "stunning" one day and "ugly" the next.

"I don't even know who that is doing that or what that's about," Drake tells XXL magazine.

"If that is her, I guess it's a little weird and disturbing. It's obviously a behavioural pattern that is way bigger than me."

With craft beer hotter than you know where, larger producers are caught in a bit of a conundrum. How, after decades of massaging the taste profile of their brands so they appeal to the masses, do they compete with up-starts that are all about in-your-face flavours?

Many have returned to their kettles to take advantage of beer's primary flavouring agent — the often unheralded hop.

Hops are the lady part of the humulus lupulus plant. And while the water or grain source of your fave brew influences its personality, individual hop strains provide the bitter goodness and expressive character.

Alexander Keith's, the one-time Nova Scotia exclusive that's now carried across the country, is proving my point by creating a unique series of ales named for the specific hop used.

Its Cascade Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is a mellow session beer with citrusy overtones and a nice, bitter bite. The Hallertauer Hop Ale (473 ml, $2.55 to $3.49) is lighter with more of a backseat bitterness that lets the malt shine through.

Try both with classic barbecue fare or spicy, hard to match dishes like Indian curries. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

A flurry of sweet treats

Ice cream. Need a fresh way to chill out this summer? How about DIY flurries?

A flurry is simple — and it isn't something you can only get at the ice cream shop. You start off with ice cream, usually a basic flavour, then you stir or mix or blend all kinds of things into it. It's not a float; no liquid is added. It's like an ice cream sundae, but with the toppings blended instead of piled on top.

Start with a pint of ice cream. Remove the lid and microwave it for about 10 seconds. Test it with a spoon. The ice cream should still be frozen, but should give when pressed with the back of the spoon. If it's not ready, continue microwaving in 5-second bursts, testing in between.

Now you're ready to mix. You can keep it simple and just use a spoon to mix the ice cream and toppings in a bowl, but where's the fun in that? Ice cream shops often use a stick blender, an item you may not have. So instead, toss everything into the food processor and pulse a few times.

As for what to use to flavour your flurries? Anything goes.

Pospisil and Raonic advance to quarter-finals

Vasek Pospisil and Milos Raonic will play in the quarter-finals of the men's Rogers Cup.

Vernon, B.C., native Pospisil came out on top of a tight match with fifth-seeded Tomas Berdych to win 7-5, 2-6, 7-6 (5) before a roaring crowd of supporters on Thursday.

Raonic, meanwhile, didn't even break a smile after a 7-5, 6-4 win over sixth-seeded Juan Martin Del Potro, the Argentine veteran who was coming off a victory last week in Washington.

Several suitors willing to make deal with Devils: Source

The three-time Stanley Cup champion New Jersey Devils are for sale and a deal is expected before the start of the NHL season.

A person familiar with the negotiations says several groups are vying to buy the financially strapped franchise and there is a chance a deal might be done quickly.

The source spoke to The Associated Press Thursday and requested anonymity because the negotiations between Devils owner Jeff Vanderbeek and the groups are still active.

The Devils moved to New Jersey in 1982, playing at the Meadowlands after relocating from Colorado.

Roughriders look to continue their streak of wins against the Stampeders

If he wasn't playing in the game, quarterback Kevin Glenn says he would definitely watch it. If he wasn't coaching in it, so would Corey Chamblin.

Friday's CFL game at McMahon Stadium between the Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders may be just another regular-season game with two-thirds of the season still to be played.

But this game has more than enough back story to hook the interest of CFL fans.

"This is a game that I wish I could play in," Saskatchewan head coach Chamblin said.

Added Calgary's Glenn: "If I was on another team and this game was coming on, I would be tuned into watching this game. I'd tell my wife and kids 'daddy's watching football tonight because the 'Riders and Stampeders are playing.'"

The Roughriders are the only undefeated team in the CFL this season at 5-0. The only loss so far for the 4-1 Stampeders was to Saskatchewan on July 5. Saskatchewan can go 6-0 to start the season for just the second time in franchise history, or the Stampeders can pull even with the Roughriders atop the CFL standings.

The Roughriders can also win the season series by taking the second of their three meetings, which means Saskatchewan would finish ahead of Calgary if the two clubs were tied in the West Division standings at season's end.

The Roughriders and Stampeders rank first and second respectively in the league in offence. Roughriders running back Kory Sheets is the CFL's leading rusher ahead of No. 2 Jon Cornish of the Stampeders.

In addition to having a premiere running back, both sides have multiple threats at receiver. Neither team has missed a field goal this season. They're tied for the average starting point in drives (39-yard line).

Both football clubs are coming off their bye weeks with questions at quarterback. Darian Durant is back after sitting out Saskatchewan's last game with an ankle injury.

Calgary backup Glenn will get the start Friday with Bo Levi Mitchell dressing as the No. 2. Mitchell went the distance in a win over Winnipeg in Calgary's last game, which Glenn sat out with an elbow injury.

Drew Tate was announced as Calgary's starter earlier this week, but had a setback with the throwing-arm injury he suffered late in that game in Regina in Week 2. Head coach John Hufnagel said Thursday that Tate will be sidelined at least another two to three weeks. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Late bloomer Hearn one stroke off lead at Oak Hill

David Hearn huddled with Mike Weir at the Canadian Open about learning from near-misses.

Weir, the 2003 Masters champion, is now 43 and settling in as a mentor to his younger countrymen. Hearn may be just coming into his own as a pro golfer at age 34.

Less than a month after losing in a playoff at the John Deere Classic for his best finish on the PGA Tour, Hearn shot a 4-under 66 on Thursday in the first round of the PGA Championship. That put him a stroke off the lead, tied with Lee Westwood behind Jim Furyk and Adam Scott.

The last time the PGA was played at Oak Hill 10 years ago, Weir was coming off his Masters title and was in contention heading into Sunday. The course is about 2 1/2 hours east of Hearn's hometown of Brantford, Ont. — best known as the hometown of Wayne Gretzky, who has also imparted advice to Hearn. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CFL. Toronto wins third straight as Alouettes, with GM Popp at the reins, fall to 1-3 at home

Week 7

Argonauts	Alouettes
38	13

The Toronto Argonauts took full advantage of the Montreal Alouettes' early turnovers to gain some breathing room atop the CFL's East Division.

John Chiles caught a pair of Ricky Ray touchdown passes and Chad Owens returned a missed field-goal attempt 118 yards in the first quarter Thursday to send Toronto to an emphatic 38-13 victory over Montreal.

Ray threw his third touchdown pass to Jason Barnes in the second quarter and Noel Prefontaine added a field goal moments later as the Argonauts roared to a 31-0 lead in Alouettes general manager Jim Popp's coaching return.

Noel Devine fumbled three times as Montreal turned over the ball six times in its first game since head coach Dan Hawkins was fired.

"You never expect to get a start like that," Toronto head coach Scott Milanovich said. "That's what you're always hoping for, to take advantage of the turnovers. We played great on defence, played great on special teams, and offensively we played great for a half and that's why we were able to get that lead."

The Argonauts (4-2) won their third straight game to increase their lead in the East to four points over Montreal and Hamilton.

"It's a long season," said Ray, who missed Toronto's last game with a knee injury. "We're pretty happy with where we're at right now but there's still two-thirds of the season to play. Nobody really wins first place early in the year but you definitely give yourself a lot of breathing room or separation and that's what we wanted to do is to get the lead and be able to put the pressure on the other teams."

Ray appeared to tweak his knee in the first half and gave way to backup quarterback Zach Collaros with Toronto firmly in the driver's seat.

The Alouettes (2-4), meanwhile, fell to 1-3 at home in 2013 to begin Popp's third stint as coach in his 18-year career with Montreal.

6 Gretzky moments since The Trade

Wayne Gretzky's trade to the Los Angeles Kings from the Edmonton Oilers on Aug. 9, 1988, continues to create a ripple effect 25 years later. Here's a look at how the deal impacted the people and teams involved:

THE CANADIAN PRESS

1. Traded again

In a deal that generated much less fanfare, Gretzky went to St. Louis on Feb. 27, 1996, for Craig Johnson, Patrice Tardif, Roman Vopat, the Blues' fifth-round choice, Peter Hogarth, in 1996, and their first-round pick, Matt Zultek, in 1997. They all had undistinguished pro careers.

2. Made the final

Gretzky led the Kings to their first-ever Stanley Cup final berth in 1993 when they lost to the Montreal Canadiens. He holds the distinction of playing in a championship series against the last Canadian team to win the Cup.

3. Played in Nagano

In 1998, Gretzky played for the first Canadian Olympic team that included NHLers.

In a controversial move, Canadian coach Marc Crawford elected not to use Gretzky in the semifinal shootout, going with defenceman Ray Bourque instead. Canada ended up losing to the Czechs, then fell to Finland in the bronze-medal game.

4. Gold-medal builder in Salt Lake

As executive director for Canada's 2002 Olympic team, Gretzky built a roster that would go on to capture Canada's first gold medal in 50 years. He held the same position with Canada's 2006 Olympic entry, but wasn't successful as Canada was eliminated by Russia in the quarter-finals.

5. Owner, manager and coach in Arizona

Gretzky was a member of the Phoenix Coyotes ownership group from 2001 to 2005, when the team was purchased by Jerry Moyes, who attempted to take the club into bankruptcy in May 2009. Gretzky was a creditor in the proceedings and lost a reported $8 million. He coached Phoenix from 2005-06 to 2008-09, compiling a record of 143-161-24.

6. Brought puck to Cali and beyond

The trade to L.A. played a large role in the NHL's decision to expand into southern markets. The league beefed up its presence in California by putting expansion teams in San Jose and Anaheim. The Kings eventually won their first and only Stanley Cup in 2011-12.

You may be desperate to change your life for the better but it won't happen overnight. Anything that is worth having is worth working for, so roll up your sleeves and get in there.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Self-doubt may be alien to you but there will be times over the next couple of days when you begin to wonder if you are doing something the wrong way. Maybe you are. Even a Leo gets it wrong sometimes.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Do something today that reminds those around you how dangerous it can be to take you for granted. You don't have to make it shocking or outrageous but, on the other hand, there's no reason why you should not!

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Pick a side and join in some kind of battle today. Does that thought fill you with fear? It shouldn't. The only people who have cause to be alarmed are those who find themselves on the opposite side to you.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Saturn in your sign is pushing you to your limits but that's OK because you enjoy being tested. Decide on a course of action over the next 24 hours and stick to it.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
The best way to deal with criticism is to ignore it. Someone will say something today that is neither true nor fair but so what? Your ego is tough enough to take it.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You will be faced with a situation that makes you angry today but don't let it get out of hand. Before you lose your temper try asking yourself who is most likely to get hurt by it: your rival or you?

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
There are times when it's OK to be selfish and this is one of them. The more other people try to move you in a certain direction, the more you must insist on going some other way, just to annoy them.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You are under divine protection and don't need to worry about the day's events or what the future may bring. Do what feels right. One way or another it will work out. SALLY BROMPTON

YOUR PAST IS IRRELEVANT
Your continuous reflection on the past can hinder God's greater works in your life most especially when God emphatically said, "Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old. Behold, I will do a new thing; now it shall spring forth; shall ye not know it? I will even make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert" (Isaiah43:18-19) Look up to Jesus instead of your past.
